NCG Presents at DrupalCon in New Orleans

Portland, Maine, May 13, 2016: Northcross Group (NCG) was a workshop host at the popular DrupalCon conference. The conference, held May 9-13, 2016 in New Orleans, is a gathering of Drupal developers, engineers, business people, and media from all around the world who come together two or three times a year for educational sessions, presentations, and social events.

NCG Development Director Chris Porter delivered a beginner-level course developed to provide participants with a greater understanding of view functionality. After completing the one-day course, students are equipped to take almost any display currently being used in Drupal and override it, allowing for customization to individual needs. NCG uses Drupal in its solutions as part of the organization's commitment to openness, standardization for development, and driving innovation and competitive advantage in how those common and interoperable tools are put to use.

"NCG is committed to being an active part of the Drupal Community and helping facilitate learning and adoption of open source platforms," said NCG's Porter.

DrupalCons are held each year in different parts of the world and are organized under the auspices of the Drupal Association in conjunction with local Drupal resources to the particular conference.
